PRESS RELEASE

Mobilegov's Digital DNA to be distributed in the Asia-Pacific region.

JULY 2008 – Mobilegov, a software editor conceiving security solution that rest on a patented technology called the Digital DNA (identification of the unique signature of any IT components), announces the signature of a distribution agreement with Aquion Ltd. in Australia.

Located in Sydney, Aquion Ltd. specialises in IT security solutions through a network of approved resellers covering Australia, New Zealand, Asia, Pacific and India.

Aquion Ltd. clients represents more than 1000 Australian companies including NAB, Commonwealth Bank, ANZ Bank, St George Bank, Westpac, Bank of New Zealand, Westpac Trust, Citigroup, GE Money, Coles-Myer, Woolworths, BHP Billiton, Rio Tinto, Telstra, and Vodafone Australia and New Zealand.

“We became aware of Mobilegov through the Red Herring 2008 selection. We were looking for innovative solutions to respond to our resellers’ demands.” declares Stephen Balicki, CEO of Aquion Ltd. Mobilegov’s solutions, Device Authenticator PRO and SAWS, held our attention because our customers prefer straightforward software and easy to deploy and use. Among the numerous offers of the market, it was obvious that Mobilegov’s Digital DNA technology was the most powerful. As from August, we are going to begin an important information and training campaign on Mobilegov’ products to our network of resellers and we plan to sign the first sales before the end of the year ».

The Aquion team is composed of IT security specialists and experts in a various complementary fields so as to enlarge its competences. Aquion Ltd. is notably associated to SIFT, an IT security consultancy specialist. Aquion’s thirty resellers will become Mobilegov certified partners within the next few months.

“Our meeting with Aquion is the result of our communication on our Red Herring award. We are delighted of the joint motivation it has generated as we were searching for strategic opportunities in the Asia-Pacific area, but had not identified the ideal partner” comments the Management team.
